

Creating Orders

Last Modified on 03/01/2023 8:43 am MST

While many of your orders will come in through your Online Store, you can also create orders in Farmbrite manually. These might be orders you take over the phone, or recurring orders that were scheduled in advance by your frequent customers. You might even add a bulk order for the items you sold at a farmers market or your farm stand to update your inventory and record the transaction as income for your financials.

Creating an Order

To create a manual order, navigate to the Market section and select Orders. You'll see a green "Create New" button to start a new order. This will bring up a new page where you can supply information about the order.

The screenshot shows the Farmbrite interface. The sidebar on the left has a 'Market' section expanded, with 'Orders' selected. The main area is titled 'Orders/Invoices' and features a 'Create New' button. Below this is a table of orders. The table has columns for ID, Ordered date, Status, Customer, and Amount. The status column includes icons for 'Ordered', 'Payment Due', and 'Pick up'. The customer column includes the customer's name and email address. The amount column shows the order total. The table lists several orders, including one for Mike Burkett, Tim Armstrong, Frank Grimes, Chris Kenneth, Maurice Syzlak, and Michael Burkett.
