

Schedule Video Tutorial

Last Modified on 11/19/2025 12:22 pm MST

While you likely already have a calendar from Google, Apple, or Microsoft, you'll want to check out some of the features in Farmbrite's to be sure you keep up with the events around your farm. You can add repeating events for things like the weekly farmers market, and individual events like vet visits or a crop harvest. You can link the events to records like equipment, livestock, crops, and fields, and can see the events on those individual records as well. As back to those other calendars, if you prefer to use them, you can sync the Farmbrite one with them too.

Additional Articles and Videos to Explore

After you have watched the video, you can browse these articles to learn more about the specific features that you are interested in.

Getting Started with the Schedule - Check out this article for a written companion to the the video embedded above. If you'd like to have a reference to read while you work in the system or have the video paused, start here!

How do I schedule repeating events? - Learn how to make events repeat; this can happen daily, weekly, monthly, or yearly. You can also set an interval, e.g. "every 3 days" or "every6 months".

Event Reminders - Check this out to learn more about getting reminder emails when an event that is assigned to you is coming up!

Activity Journals - These unique events types can help you journal what happened each day at your farm. These are reportable and can be a great "look back" on what was accomplished and highlights for the day.

Syncing Schedule with Calendar - If you'd like to sync your Apple, Microsoft, and Google calendars to your farm events, check out this article to learn how. You can download and import them, or create a more permanent sync to keep the connection established and new events flowing.
