Mapping Warehouses

Last Modified on 02/13/2026 2:45 pm MST

Mapping Your Warehouse

Your warehouse is likely a physical location on your farm, and you'll be able to connect it with your farm map. This will give you a great aerial view of all of your storage locations across your property.

You can start from either the warehouse or the map, both ways allow you to make the connection. In our image below we've mapped it from the warehouse record. Just select your warehouse, choose the Map tab, and draw your Storage Location. It will be saved and presented each time you access this tab, or the main Farm Map. This might help your farmhands and delivery workers find their way around a large property or complicated multi-location business.

If you have many warehouses to map, you might also consider importing them. This is available under the actions menu. You can read more about importing your map here. Overall, if you have your storage locations mapped in a GIS program or Google MyMaps, you can likely export the coordinates and import them into Farmbrite as well.